

THREE MILLION ON THE DOLE

GUTTED skeleton of a British factory — all that remains after the plant and machinery have been stripped and sent to the far east, where labour is cheap. This is what passes for a Tory 'economic policy'.

THIS MONTH, unemployment will almost certainly pass the three million mark, for the second time since the Tories came to power in 1979. Indeed, under the old system of counting, the figure would already have reached 3.8 million. But the Tories have massaged the statistics no less than seventeen times in order to con the public.

More than one in ten British workers are languishing on the dole, thanks to the disastrous mistakes of the Government.

The Tories conned their way into power on the premise that they knew how to run the economy — this is now exposed as a lie.

Nearly a million young people, aged 18-25, spent Christmas without a job. But the official figures do not include the 125,000 16 and 17-year-olds who are jobless but not entitled to Unemployment Benefit.

Despite the Government's protestations of 'worldwide' recession, the blame for mass unemployment must be firmly laid at the door of John Major and his Hunger Chancellor, Norman Lamont.

During better times, the Tories should have laid the firm foundations for our future by investing in British industries. Instead of this, the financial spivs were encouraged to make a fast buck by property speculation and credit-financed service industries. Meanwhile, countries such as Japan and Korea were creating a sound industrial base which has comfortably seen them through the present recession.

The real scandal is that the Government could end unemployment tomorrow if it really wanted to — by the simple expedient of repatriating three million surplus immigrants who were not wanted in the first place and now have no valid economic reason for being here.

Jobless total nears new high as Government bungling ruins more industries

But this would of course defeat the whole object of immigration, which is to create permanent mass unemployment and thus keep wages low for the benefit of Tory businessmen.

But by pandering to the City spivs in this way, the Tories are playing with fire. Economist Robert Lind of stockbrokers UBS Phillips & Drew warns: "There is the possibility that such high numbers of unemployment can lead to social unrest." Mr Lind has predicted that unemployment could rise to an official figure of 3.75 million by the middle of this year. If this is the case, we will almost certainly see race riots of the kind which erupted in the mid 1980s, which can only have the effect of increasing support for the British National Party.

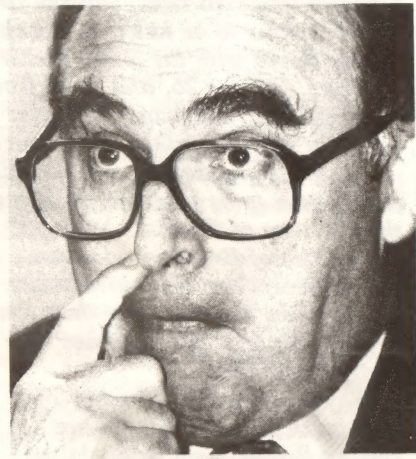

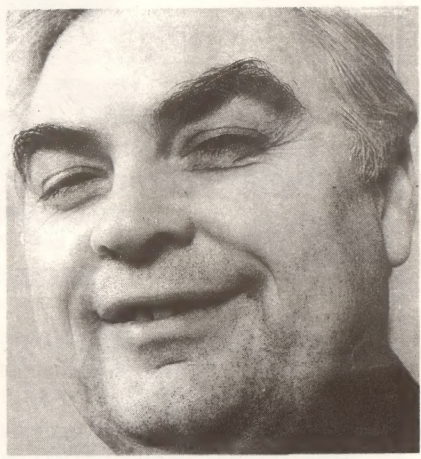

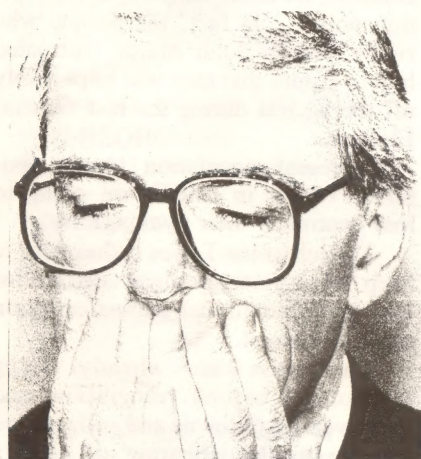

The British public are already turning to the BNP in droves as they finally realise that the old 'System' parties no longer have a shred of credibility.

For every person who has lost their job, there are another half dozen who are frightened that it will be their turn next. Such a prospect certainly concentrates the mind when it comes to elections, as the Tories recently discovered in Millwall, where they were beaten into a humiliating fourth place by the BNP.

The political spivs and gangsters in Westminster have no idea what to do about unemployment, because none of them have ever experienced it themselves. All they can do is make ritual murmurings of regret as the flood of immigrants and cheap foreign imports put more British people on the breadline.

It is about time that we put John Major and Co on the dole.

THE THREE STOOGES: Their body language says it all. Hopelessly out of his depth with economic matters, John Major covers his face to shut out reality. Hunger Chancellor Norman Lamont smirks like a smug City spiv, living the high life while his fellow citizens rot on the dole. Finally, John Smith, leader of the so-called 'Opposition', searches for inspiration inside his right nostril.

REPATRIATION: WHERE THERE'S A WILL, THERE'S A WAY!

If there's one thing that the Government have been telling us is a real 'no-no' it's the idea that immigrants to Britain can be repatriated. The authorities even plead impotence in the case of illegal immigrants who are acknowledged to be entering Britain with fake documents and identities and then settling down to live a life of crime once they have gatecrashed their way in, staying on indefinitely. Even if they are discovered, the proceedings necessary for their removal, we are told, are mostly just too cumbersome, and in any case, they say, it would be immoral to send them back. So ordinary Britons must just put up with it.

All this, however, suddenly seems to go by the board when it's a case of certain other more exalted personages being inconvenienced by the immigrant presence.

When it was revealed that Chancellor Norman Lamont had overspent on his Access card, Off-Licence assistant John Onanugu, a Nigerian, claimed that the Chancellor of the Exchequer had bought champagne and cigarettes from him. This added greatly to Mr. Lamont's embarrassment.

It subsequently turned out that Onanugu was an illegal immigrant. But in his case there was no hanging about by the powers that be. Immigration Minister Mr. Charles Wardle was said to be anxious that Onanugu should not be seen as a victim of an official vendetta over the public grief he had caused the Chancellor, even though it seems that matters were greatly expedited in his case.

Onanugu was to be served his deportation order early last month. Not that he's likely to be away for long. Street dealers in the Nigerian capital Lagos make a good living from selling fake British passports and travel documents to any of the locals who have a yearning to come to Britain and can afford to pay.

The Home Office admits that of the illegal Nigerians who are careless enough to get caught and deported from Britain a great many get back here again within weeks by this means.

But many Britons will still find it reassuring to know that if their switch is tripped the immigration authorities can act with such swiftness and efficiency, without regard for phoney niceties about Britain's alleged moral obligation to provide a free ride for the Third World's millions. It holds out some hope that perhaps at some stage a British Government might yet find the will and wherewithal to cut the balderdash altogether and apply the same degree of swiftness and efficiency in repatriating outsiders who don't belong here across the board, so that the British people as a whole can be relieved of their country's alien cargo.

It's all another little demonstration that, after all, where there's a will, there's a way.

GOVERNMENT ALLOWS MASSIVE IMMIGRATION RACKET

JONATHAN APRELA

Thousands of Nigerian crooks are pouring into Britain using false documents at £70 each

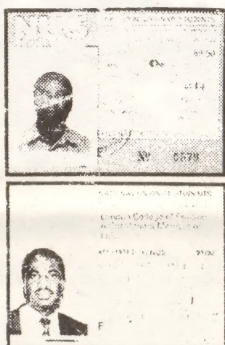

THE GOVERNMENT is deliberately turning a blind eye to thousands of illegal immigrants entering the country each year, in order to keep British wages low and maintain good "race relations."

Thanks to the Government's weakness, illegal immigration has become a huge criminal racket, with an estimated three quarters of a million illegal aliens currently living in Britain.

FAKE BRITISH PASSPORTS

One of the main sources of illegal immigrants is Nigeria, where dealers openly sell fake British passports and such as these bogus student union cards are a simple way to enter Britain and begin a life of lucrative crime.

documents at street markets and "advice centres."

For just £70, Nigerians can buy a passport, bogus tax certificate fake bank statement and false British job references to 'prove' links with the UK.

Once the immigrants reach Britain, they make contact with highly organised Nigerian gangs who arrange a safe house and control their criminal activities.

SOCIAL SECURITY FRAUD

Racketeers such as Jonathan Aprela can provide any bogus documents required. He can also give detailed advice as to how to claim social security, once immigrants reach Britain. Often, the illegal immigrants adopt several identities in order to make fraudulent multiple income support claims worth thousands of pounds from different benefit offices.

Many illegal immigrants also specialise in bank and car loan frauds.

One illegal Nigerian immigrant, John Ajiferuke, was recently using at least three different names while working for the BBC as a TV licence revenue collector. After tricking his way into Britain ten years ago he illegally obtained a student grant, a mortgage, national insurance number and the right to vote. He is now being sought by the police.

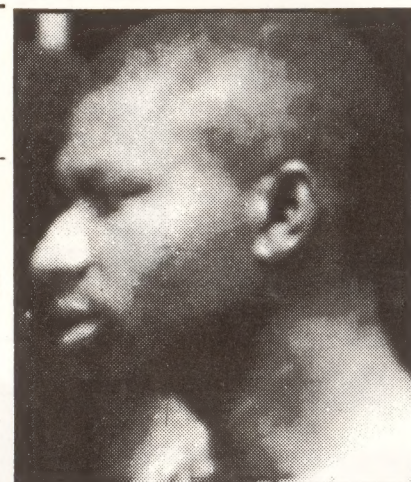

Senior Scotland Yard officers say there are eight Nigerian gangs in London involved in fraud worth hundreds of millions of pounds a year.

STUDENT GRANT FRAUDS

Education authorities lose thousands of pounds each year through fraudulent student grant applications from illegal immigrants. Brent Council is understood to be investigating 80 possible instances. Council officials say many claims appear to have been made on behalf of Nigerian students.

Enfield Council in north London says it has passed on details of 25 fraud cases, worth an estimated £344,000, to the police.

Immigration racketeering is now big business in Britain and Western European countries.

OLANIYI OLADAPO
is wanted by the police after conning his way into a British university and helping illegal immigrants to enter Britain.

It is run by vicious crooks, but with the connivance and encouragement of corrupt 'legitimate' politicians in Parliament. If the authorities did not turn a blind eye, illegal immigration could be stamped out tomorrow. It continues only because the Westminster 'system' politicians want it to.

CENSUS RACE SHOCK

Official figures show Britain swamped with immigrants - a quarter of London now black

More than a quarter of London is now black, according to shock figures released by the Government.

The newly-published results of the 1991 Census, which for the first time contained questions on race, show that non-whites throughout Britain as a whole make up around six per cent of the population.

ILLEGAL IMMIGRANTS

The figures, shocking as they are, are a severe underestimate of the real number of aliens in Britain, as the Census does not take account of the hundreds of thousands of illegal immigrants, and those arriving on 'temporary' visas who then stay on. The true number of aliens is widely thought to be perilously close to the ten per cent level.

BREEDING PATTERNS

The underlying threat to the white population is not only from direct immigration, but from the breeding patterns of those already here. Whites in Britain are an ageing, declining population, while non-whites are a young, rapidly expanding group. The average number of children produced by Asian and Afro-Caribbean women is far higher than that of native whites. The rapid increase in race-mixing is also having the effect of accelerating the growth of the non-white population.

THOUSANDS OF IMMIGRANTS enter Britain each week, making nonsense of Tory claims about 'controls'. How long before whites are a minority?

BRITAIN SWAMPED

Parts of Britain, such as Leicester and Bradford have been severely swamped by mass immigration for some time, but the Government and local authorities are now adopting a

'swamp and seed' policy, by which aliens are being exported to more rural towns and villages.

Many middle-class families, who moved out to suburban and villages to escape living near 'ethnics' in the cities, are dismayed to find their rural havens are themselves acquiring new communities of immigrants.

Of the non-white groups in Britain, the largest is the Afro-Caribbean, which officially makes up 1.7 per cent of the population. This is closely followed by the Indian group which officially forms 1.5 per cent.

Despite the terrifying statistics, it is clear that the Tory Government has no intention of tightening immigration controls, let alone adopting a repatriation policy. In fact, the people who really control John Major instructed him to ensure that race was kept firmly off the agenda during the last General Election.

If present population trends continue, Whites in Britain are going to lose control of their own country.

The job of the Tories is therefore to keep unsuspecting Goyim docile for long enough until such a transformation can come about.

Our cities are already being transformed beyond recognition, and now even small towns and villages are echoing to the jabbering of foreign tongues as strangely-garbed figures shuffle into view.

How long will it be before we native British become a minority in our own land?

DID HE HAVE TO DIE FOR BOSNIA?

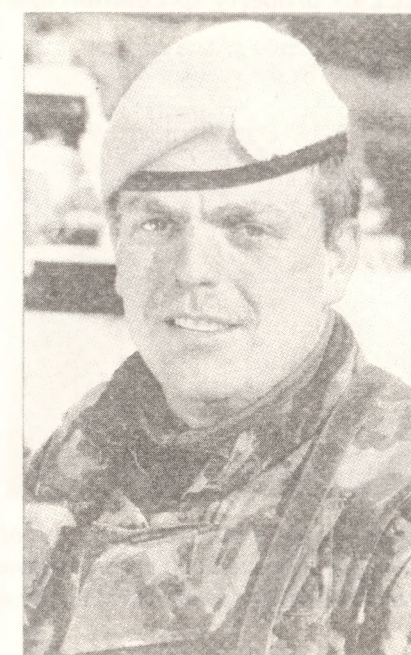

LANCE CORPORAL Wayne Edwards (pictured right) was the first British soldier to be killed in Bosnia. Wayne served with the Royal Welsh Fusiliers. He was 26, and came from a village near Wrexham. He leaves behind a grieving father and mother.

The great question is: why did his family have to be bereaved by a war that is none of Britain's business?

Families of British servicemen always accept that their loved ones do run some risk of losing their lives - providing it is in the service of their own country.

Wayne was not serving his own country in Bosnia. He was just serving Britain's politicians' meddlesome itch to have a finger in the affairs of every country under the sun.

How many more fine young British men must die in this foreign quarrel?

Anger at new 'ethnic' police exam

POLICE ENTRANCE TEST NOW SIMPLE ENOUGH FOR CHILDREN TO PASS

IN A DESPERATE BID to appease Britain's immigrant communities, the Tories are trying to encourage more 'ethnics' to join the police force.

A new, simpler entrance exam has been introduced to make it easier for all applicants — particularly ethnic minority members — to gain admission.

The exam paper includes such brain teasers as: "A work shift begins at 14.15 and lasts for six hours. What time does it end?"

SIMPLE ENOUGH FOR A CHILD

But the new test has been slammed as so simple that a even a child could pass. Professor Lee Pearson, an educational psychologist, said: "I would expect children of 11 and 12 of average ability to complete the test with a reasonable score."

Sgt David Ore, a West Midlands police recruiting officer commented: "The old test was devised for white, middle-class people and did not reflect the type of recruit who is now coming forward to join the police."

The new test is designed to make entry into the force absolutely simple — yet Sgt Ore admitted that of those who took the exam one particular week, no less than HALF failed!

This was despite the fact that applicants were given such helpful advice as: "the more questions you get right, the higher your score will be" and "if you wear glasses, be sure to bring them with you."

Many ordinary policemen have expressed horror that the new test could allow a drastic decline in the standard of recruits. Inspector Stuart Harris of the West Midlands Police Federation commented: "The public deserves better than this. Our members would be very concerned if it meant we were prepared to accept a lower standard of recruit."

But left-wing Chief Constables are determined to recruit more blacks to the force in order to combat 'white racism' — and they have the blessing of the Tory Government. A Home Office spokesman confirmed: "We are actively encouraging recruits from ethnic backgrounds."

It seems that the Home Office wants to recruit 'ethnic' policemen at any price, if the standard of the questions set in the new test are anything to go by.

One police recruitment officer commented: "Some serving policemen who have seen the specimen questions have phoned me and said it makes it look as though you only have to know your times table and be able to string three words together to become a policeman."

WHERE 'PC' stands for 'Politically Correct', the public are worried about declining standards.

ETHNIC MINORITIES

Quite apart from the issue of 'Politically Correct' recruitment, it appears that policemen are to be increasingly politicised as far as the race issue is concerned.

Left-wing Chief Constables are increasingly sending their officers on 'race awareness' courses, and encouraging them to harass patriotic organisations such as the BNP.

A recent example of 'race awareness' indoctrination has occurred in Leicestershire, where recruits are forced to spend a weekend living with Asian families as part of their training.

Yet all the evidence from recent race riots shows that the immigrant communities are not impressed with this kind of public relations exercise, which they (rightly) see as a manifestation of weakness by white society.

What the British public want is not more 'ethnic' police officers, but a more efficient force and tougher penalties for vicious criminals.

Vicious racial attacks upon British women

POLICE in Birmingham are hunting a "light-skinned black man" who raped a 40-year-old anglican nun.

The man broke into a convent and threatened the defenceless woman with a knife. After the rape, he locked her naked in a garden.

The rapist is described as in his mid 20s, about 6 ft tall. It is believed the attack may be linked to six others, mainly on old people in the Aston area of Birmingham.

POLICE are seeking this black rapist who attacked a nun.

Meanwhile, police in Leeds are looking for an Asian rapist who has attacked at least seven women in the past two years.

The fiend's latest victim was a 16-year-old schoolgirl, who was ambushed and raped in a park.

These horrifying racial attacks will leave long-lasting emotional scars upon their victims, yet they hardly rate a mention in the Establishment press, because the victims are white.

Deportation for wine shop man who blew whistle on Chancellor

THE GOVERNMENT, so it was announced on January 3rd, have ordered the deportation of wine shop assistant John Onanugu, who was involved in the incident concerning Chancellor Norman Lamont's visit to a London off-licence and his alleged overspending on his credit account. The reason? Mr. Onanugu is an illegal immigrant.

Isn't it marvellous! Illegal immigrants are swarming into this country in numbers that are getting completely out of hand. There are now three quarters of a million of them here according to official figures — which means that the probable total is a great deal larger. And the Government seems to be doing little to stop the flood.

But Mr. Onanugu, a Nigerian, seems to be a different case. He committed the unpardonable crime of giving a story to a newspaper reporter which drew attention to the Chancellor's overdraft on his credit account, and left the Government with egg on its face.

Not that the Government will admit that Mr. Onanugu's deportation has anything to do with this. According to a report in the Sunday Express on January 3rd: "Immigration Minister Mr. Charles Wardle...is said to be anxious not to be seen waging a vendetta against Onanugu because of the acute embarrassment the Nigerian caused the Chancellor."

Vendetta? Perish the thought!

(LEFT) John Onanugu is to be sent back to Nigeria, after causing embarrassment to the Tories.

REPATRIATION WORKS!

Other countries prove it...

BRITAIN's Tory Government has refused to consider repatriation as the most sensible option to end mass unemployment and racial strife, claiming that such an option would be 'unworkable' and 'inhumane'.

But we have got news for John Major and his friends: Repatriation is already happening, in countries as diverse as Germany and India.

50,000 REPATRIATED FROM GERMANY

Under an agreement signed in Bucharest, no less than FIFTY THOUSAND gypsies are to be repatriated from Germany back to their Romanian homeland. The gypsies first pitched up in Germany in late 1989 to take lucrative jobs and social security handouts, but were immediately unpopular with native Germans because of their dark skins and the squalor and lawlessness surrounding many of their encampments.

Since their arrival, the gypsies have had to live in fortified hostels for their own protection, as native Germans have taken to the streets in a bid to drive out unwanted immigrants by force.

DEPORTATION

The German Interior Minister, Rudolf Seiters, and his Romanian counterpart are studying the best method of deportation, and it is hoped that the gypsies will be gone by the end of March this year.

Meanwhile, the government of India has begun repatriating the first of 200,000 Tamil 'refugees' back to Sri Lanka, as racial tension caused by the immigrants is threatening to spark a civil war in the country. The first batch of 5,000 were deported in an Indian chartered ship in the third week of January.

UNWANTED ALIENS

The latest moves by European and third world countries to rid themselves of unwanted aliens have strengthened support in Britain for the British National Party's policy of humane, phased repatriation of foreigners from our own country. The issue is one of simple arithmetic: We have three million unemployed, and over three million aliens.

As unemployment continues to grow, more and more British people are asking: "If repatriation works for other countries, why can't WE try it?"

RACE BOARD: "TV APE AD OFFENDS BLACKS"

Nutty CRE drops another clanger

THE COMMISSION for Racial Equality (CRE) has managed to make itself look even more ridiculous than usual, over claims that an advertisement showing apes eating a banana is offensive to blacks.

ORANG-OTANGS

Peter Oteng, senior officer of the Birmingham CRE, complained about a TV advertisement for the Electricity Association, in which two animated orang-otangs drinking cups of tea and eating a banana discussed the merits of electric tumble driers.

Oteng claimed many viewers would look upon the apes as representing blacks (!). But a spokesman for GKK Advertising, who made the commercial, said the accusations were "completely incomprehensible" and the CRE was privately advised by the Independent Broadcasting Authority that there was no question of withdrawing the advertisement.

HUMILIATING U-TURN

This forced a humiliating U-turn by the CRE, which issued a statement saying: "The remarks attributed today to a Birmingham official of the CRE do not reflect the views of the Commission."

The CRE receives millions of pounds from the British taxpayer to fund the promotion of 'race relations' propaganda of this sort, in a desperate attempt to prop up the failed experiment of the 'multi-racial society'.

The organisation has long been regarded as a joke, even by the 'ethnics' themselves. But the joke is wearing rather thin; as more and more British people lose their jobs and homes, they are becoming increasingly disgusted with the hugely inflated salaries of self-important left-wing aliens who run the CRE circus.

It must be increasingly obvious even to the most abject apologist for multi-racialism, that the only real solution to the problem of racial conflict is for the immigrants to be repatriated to their lands of origin.

Such a policy would have the additional benefit of saving the taxpayer millions of pounds, as there would be no need for the 'race relations' industry.

Blackpool swamped by Asians

Old folk flee in terror as 5,000 Moslem fanatics go on 'blood rites' rampage

OLD AGE pensioners and young families alike have been forced to flee in terror from what should have been a pleasant day out in Blackpool - thanks to rioting by gangs of Asian religious fanatics.

Hordes of aliens, mostly of Pakistani and Bangladeshi origin, have targeted Blackpool as the venue for a weird 'blood sacrifice' festival known as Eid-ul Fitr.

5,000-STRONG HORDE

The festival takes place twice a year, on dates which vary according to the position of the moon.

In the aftermath of the latest 'celebration' of the festival, a police spokesman admitted that "about 300 troublemakers were driving up and down the prom" but said that the authorities had not had the manpower to deal with the 5,000-strong horde which swamped the seaside town. The police have not commented on rumours that many of the gangs were allowed to carry ceremonial daggers in the streets.

ASIAN FLAGS

According to one local Councillor: "The flying of hundreds of Asian flags from cars along the Prom caused consternation to the people of Blackpool. Unless you were at the Pleasure Beach that weekend you wouldn't have believed the sorts of problems these young Asians were causing."

'RACIAL ATTACK' AGAINST WHITES

A British resident of Blackpool told BN: "This is the equivalent of a mass racial attack by Asians against whites. Most white people here find their alien flags and rowdy behaviour extremely offensive - and rather frightening. Several old folk fled for their lives when about 300 Asians tore along the seafront on motorbikes. Young children were terrified at seeing so many aliens together at one time. We felt like foreigners in our own country."

WHY WERE THEY ALLOWED IN?

Some residents demanded to know why the police could not simply turn the Asians away at the M55 before they reached the town.

But Chief Superintendent Ken Mackay whined: "I don't think it would be lawful to turn people away at the motorway and I don't think it would be right."

What an extraordinary statement! Because this is precisely the treatment received by the BNP when they recently tried to hold a peaceful (and perfectly lawful) demonstration in Halifax, a town not far from

AN AMATEUR FOOTBALL TEAM — not in Pakistan or India but in Pendle, a small town in north-west England. Immigration has devastated areas such as Bradford, Rochdale and Halifax.

Blackpool. The BNP were prevented from entering the town and escorted back to the motorway by the Lancashire police.

Yet another example of the 'flexibility' of the law when it comes to putting the 'rights' of aliens before those of British folk.

The Government has consistently shown weakness when dealing with rioting ethnic minorities. This is for two reasons.

Firstly, the natural reaction of limpwristed liberals towards law-breakers is to try and 'buy off' the criminal rather than to punish him. Thus, when alien rioters invade our streets, the Government's first reaction is: "How much money do we need to throw at them to keep them quiet for a few more months?"

Secondly, the Government cannot solve the real problem, which is immigration itself.

This is because the policy of the Tory Government is one of continuing mass immigration.

WHITE FAMILIES BANNED FROM SUBSIDY HOMES

Scandal of luxury houses for rent only to aliens, queers and drug addicts

THE GOVERNMENT is to build 1,500 new houses in south London for homeless people - but the bad news is that WHITE families will be BANNED from renting most of them.

Most of the homes, paid for with a £60 million subsidy from the taxpayer, will only be open to ethnic minorities, AIDS sufferers, alcoholics, ex-cons, queers and (of course) foreign 'refugees'.

The houses are to be built by three housing associations, and funded by the Housing Corporation's South Thames Housing Project, with an average subsidy of £40,000 per unit.

'ETHNIC MINORITY GROUPS'

Sir Norman Wakefield, deputy Chairman of the Corporation, boasted: "The associations have a commitment to new black and ethnic minority groups. Without that we would not feel able to give our full-bodied support."

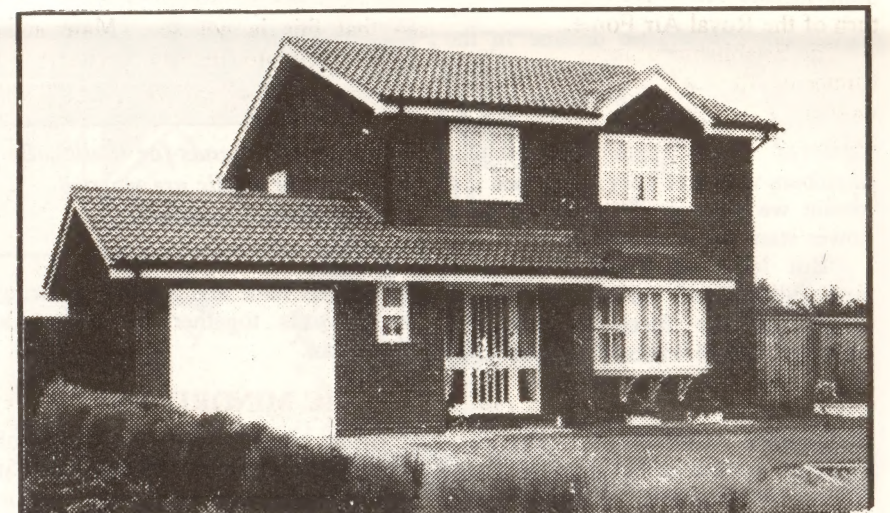

White communities across London have expressed outrage that homeless white families will be largely barred from renting the new houses by a complicated application system which favours 'minority groups'. Applications for accommodation in the new homes can only be made through 'nominated referral agencies' attached to the three housing associations.

YOUNG, SINGLE & BLACK

The Hexagon association has 10 referral agencies, only two of which would offer advice to a white family in need. The Wandle association has 13 agencies, including one aimed exclusively at Asian women and another devoted to single black women aged 17 to 21. Of Threshold's seven agencies, only two would cater for a white family. One agency, the West Indian League, helps only those who are young, single, black and from the West Indies.

MASS IMMIGRATION

Many of London's traditional white communities have been devastated by mass immigration, and there is a great deal of bitterness at the plan to push LUXURY HOMES — but don't bother to apply if you're white because they are only for rent to 'ethnics', drug-addicts and queers. Imagine the outcry if a developer offered homes to WHITES only!

whites to the back of the housing queue. One Eastender commented to BN: "This is absolutely appalling. The Government has caused thousands of white families to be turned out of their houses through the recession, and now they are building houses for foreigners, drug addicts and queers. When will people wake up and realise what's happening?"

INTEREST RATES SWINDLE

Around 50,000 people lost their homes last year through repossession, thanks to the international interest rates swindle, by which a small minority of finance speculators are making huge amounts of money by manipulating interest and exchange rates on the international market.

It is an astonishing situation when a country like Britain has thousands of homeless families, while at the same time the property market has collapsed to the extent that hardly any new houses are being built.

Those families who bought their homes during the period of ludicrously inflated property prices are now unable to sell them because of the collapse in the market, which was caused by the sudden increase in interest rates. In many cases, householders are having to pay mortgages far higher than the actual value of their property.

This of course creates a glut of unsold properties on the market, with the result that it is not economic to build new houses.

Who benefits from the present state of affairs in the property market? Certainly not the home owner, who is now left with a house worth considerably less than the sum which he originally paid for it, as well as the uncertainty of fluctuating interest rates which could leave him unable to meet his mortgage repayments.

The only people who benefit from the interest rate misery are property speculators who can buy property cheaply during the present slump, only to re-sell at inflated prices when the economy improves.

The real culprits for this crazy situation are of course the Government. They created the property boom during the 1980s, by encouraging people to buy property at ridiculously inflated prices during the credit boom. Property speculators, made a fortune, while the Government assured everyone that property was a perfectly safe investment, which could not lose its value.

Another great Tory swindle.

CHAMPAGNE SOCIALISTS

Cynical left-wing parasites earning huge salaries from their political activities

LEFT-WINGERS in the Labour Party and the trade unions are fond of cultivating their 'working class' image in order to con working people into voting for them. But a glance at the salaries that some of these socialists are earning gives a rather different picture.

For example, we can reveal that Ken Gill, the marxist former general secretary of the Manufacturing, Science and Finance (MSF) union, has scooped a retirement lump sum of £140,000 plus a pension of £20,000 per year.

It has emerged that Gill wanted to sting his 'brothers' for no less than £200,000, but the union claimed it could not afford it!

COMMUNIST PARTY

Ken Gill was expelled from the Communist Party in the mid 1980s, on the grounds that he was too left-wing, but his communist principles do not seem to have dampened his enjoyment of the highlife.

It appears that he is just one of many left-wing politicians taking working-class supporters for a ride. Socialism has become a lucrative business for the privileged few who rise to the top of the dung-heap.

EURO FAT CATS

Another socialist get rich quick scheme is the European Parliament; Labour Euro-MPs do not disagree with their Tory counterparts when it comes to pocketing the huge salary and perks from the Euro gravy train.

Some Labour supporters, however, are less than satisfied with the amount of work (or lack of it) provided by their MEPs. For example, a recent motion condemning the pit closures was defeated by just two votes thanks to the absence of 12 Labour MEPs. Some of the champagne socialists had returned to Britain after pocketing their £130-a-day attendance allowance, which they can claim for simply turning up at Strasbourg without staying for every vote. Others were too busy guzzling French cuisine in the parliament's restaurant to be worried about a minor matter such as the British coal industry.

MARXIST UNION BARON Ken Gill scoops £140,000 from his trade union members

Winning a Euro-election is the passport to a champagne lifestyle, as MEPs scoop over £100,000 a year in pay and perks, courtesy of taxpayers. One politician said that being an Euro-MP was "like winning the pools every year."

It is no wonder that ordinary working people are deserting Labour in droves. The 'Socialist' movement is being exposed as no more than a cynical swindle by which left-wing politicians masquerading as 'workers' are living off the back of genuine working people.

WINSTON CHURCHILL: Was he backed by Zionists? His failure to make peace destroyed the British Empire.

A LEADING historian has added new strength to the 'Revisionist' movement by publishing a book condemning Churchill's war against Germany.

Dr John Charmley, a history lecturer at the University of East Anglia, argues that Britain should have made peace with Germany in 1940-41.

CHURCHILL: THE END OF THE MYTH

Churchill's failure to abandon the war led to the deaths of millions of Europeans and the destruction of the British Empire.

Dr Charmley's argument is by no means new; a number of historians, such as David Irving, have long held similar views, arguing that the only real 'winners' of the second world war were communist Russia, and America.

What is significant, however, is that Dr Charmley has not in the past been regarded as a 'maverick' or 'dissident' in the sense that David Irving has; indeed, he is in a sense very much a part of the intellectual 'Establishment'. Moreover, his views have received the support of Tory MP and former Defence Minister Alan Clark.

REVISIONIST ARGUMENT

Dr Charmley has stopped short of accepting the main crux of the Revisionist argument, which is that Churchill's actions were the result of his financial or political dependence on the Zionist lobby.

But the fact is, that a growing number of 'Establishment' figures are beginning to say things which were unsayable only a few years ago. 'Heresies' which were once expressed only by the BNP are gradually finding their way into certain parts of the Establishment press.

ESTABLISHMENT

This does not mean that the Establishment is suddenly coming around to the BNP's way of thinking; nor is it ever likely to.

What is significant is that the political environment is undergoing a subtle but important change. As the twentieth century draws to a welcome close, the intellectual stranglehold of liberalism is weakening. Across Europe, nationalist movements are gaining a measure of support which was once thought to be impossible.

It is heartening that an increasing number of dissident intellectuals are acquiring the courage to challenge the political agenda set by those who control Britain.

Those who have sought to expose the truth about the second world war, particularly when they have challenged the truthfulness of the Jewish 'Holocaust', have faced a considerable amount of hostile reaction from the Establishment.

David Irving's books have been withdrawn from virtually every bookshop in the country. His lecture meetings have been violently attacked, he has been attacked verbally in the press, and on occasions physically assaulted. In Germany, Mr Irving recently incurred a £4,000 fine for commenting on his observation that the Nazi 'gas chambers' at Auschwitz were mock-ups erected for propaganda purposes after the war. A Munich court has since raised the fine to £12,000.

These are the obstacles faced by the modern 'heretic'. To question Churchill's motives for prosecuting a suicidal war against Germany is indeed regarded as 'heresy' by the liberal intellectual. The Tory and Socialist apologists for Churchill gloss over the fact that eastern Europe was handed over to Stalin, who murdered far more civilians than Hitler ever did. They also excuse the fact that he bankrupted Britain and handed her Empire to the Americans.

Dr Charmley should therefore be congratulated for helping expose this Establishment hypocrisy.

WOMEN PUT IN DANGER BY 'PC' DOGMA

BRITAIN'S armed forces are by no means immune from the bizarre dogma of the 'Politically Correct' movement.

British Nationalist has recently reported the Army's strident attempts to recruit 'ethnic minorities', homosexuals and women; now it is the turn of the Royal Air Force.

The Establishment press has loudly trumpeted the case of an unmarried mother of twin babies who insists on remaining in the RAF.

POLITICALLY CORRECT

In the best traditions of Politically Correct 'feminism', Janice Poole says: "I think it right that I should be able to continue my career in the RAF while also being a mother."

This all sounds very noble, until we discover that Ms Poole employs a full-time live-in 'nanny' to look after her children!

In other words, she rejects the 'degrading chore' of motherhood, yet is quite happy to employ another woman to do the job for her.

Apart from the obvious hypocrisy of the liberal intellectual insistence on 'women's rights', there is the much more important question of whether the armed forces can retain their fighting efficiency while employing women.

Ms Poole, for example, says that if her nanny falls ill, "I need sufficient understanding from my superiors to allow me to make alternative arrangements or, in the worst case, take leave and stay at home myself."

This is hardly the attitude which the armed forces require to maintain a constant level of battle-readiness.

FIGHTING PERFORMANCE

Recruitment of females by the various branches of the armed forces of course has nothing to do with improving efficiency or enhancing fighting performance.

It has everything to do with advancing fashionable left-wing political dogma and undermining the moral fibre of the nation.

It is absolutely appalling that the lives of our womenfolk are being put in danger through the ridiculous assertion that men and women are 'equal'. The fact is, that men and women's natural roles have equal value, but are NOT the same. It is neither natural nor desirable that women should be pressured into trying to 'outdo' men in traditionally male occupations.

LIBERAL ESTABLISHMENT

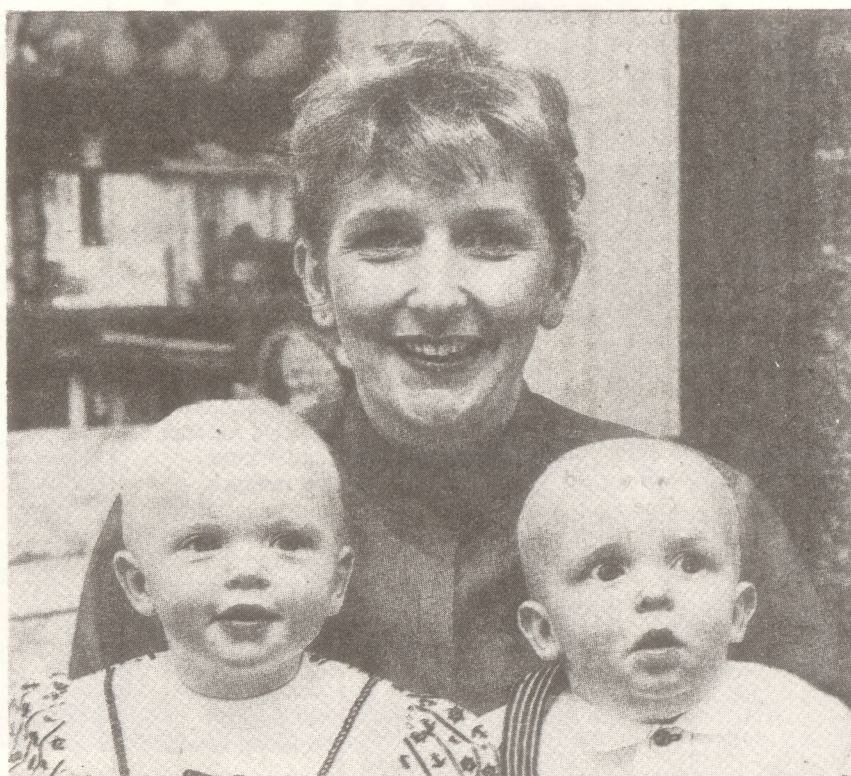

Women constantly being told by the liberal Establishment that motherhood or looking after the family home are 'inferior' occupations. Yet anyone with an ounce of common sense can see that this is not so. Male and female roles are in fact perfectly complementary to each other; it is not necessary for the sexes to be in competition.

It is a scandal that our womenfolk are being pressurised into joining the armed forces. Their lives in many cases are being put in jeopardy, and the politicians responsible should be ashamed of themselves.

'Sex-equality' rule nearly causes WPC's death

LESLEY HARRISON, a female police constable in Liverpool, received stab wounds which very nearly cost her her life when just after Christmas she was sent to investigate a suspected burglary. When she confronted the suspect he lunged at her with a knife. Though dripping with blood from the resulting wound, WPC Harrison chased the burglar for 50 yards before she collapsed. She was rushed to the intensive care unit at a local hospital, where for some days her life hung in the balance.

But many people who read the newspaper reports of this incident will be asking the obvious question: What were the Liverpool Police doing sending a woman on a job like this in the first place?

Women have a valuable role in police work, but this should not include involvement in duties where physical violence might result. In recent times we have witnessed women taking part in riot control, and now it appears clear that they are also being deployed in many other situations where they are exposed to the possibility of brutal physical attack — such as happened to WPC Harrison on that nearly fatal night in late December.

But it appears that the rules do not permit police chiefs to take any other course. Laws against 'sexual discrimination' oblige them not to take officers' sex into account when drawing up duty lists. Said Metropolitan Police Federation Chairman Michael Bennett: "It is not unusual to have two women crewing a patrol car — we daren't not do it."

In a report in the Daily Mail on the 29th December it was stated that: "In many forces police chiefs have no way of knowing without special checks whether an officer is male or female, because the letter W before the title of PC has been dropped. Lists consist merely of rank, number and name."

W.P.C. HARRISON
She never should have been sent on assignment which led to stabbing

This craziness is all part of 'politically correct' legislation passed in recent years which makes no distinction between male and female capacities, either mental or physical. So far the present Major Government has done nothing to reverse the trend.

It is high time that the madness of 'sex equality' came to an end, that men and women were allocated jobs in accordance with their sometimes vastly different attributes and that the likes of WPC Harrison were no longer exposed to the risk of violent death in the way that happened in Liverpool in December.

Politicians have no right to put our womenfolk in the front line against violent criminals.

RALLY '92: Video-recording of the British National Party's Annual Rally in Central London on October 24th 1992. This video is now available and should make an ideal Christmas present for members of your family or friends. With better filming equipment used, the quality of picture is much superior to that in previous BNP rally videos. Price: £12.00 plus 93p p&p.

JOIN THE WELLING CLUB

THE WELLING CLUB is a circle of British National Party supporters who are able and willing to contribute £20 a month to the BNP.

Now that the Party is entering the 'big league' of British politics there is clearly a need for a regular source of income with which to finance necessary expansion.

Money for new equipment, administrative staff, transport and election expenses inevitably becomes more and more necessary as the BNP expands.

A number of members and supporters have already joined the Welling Club, and the additional source of income has proved most useful.

In return for their monthly £20 contributions, members of the Club will receive regular special news bulletins, and will be invited free of charge to an annual dinner, which will be addressed by the Party Chairman.

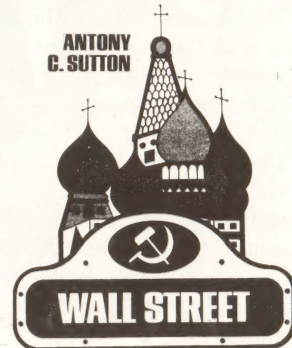

Those who wish to join the Welling Club should write to: The Welling Club, PO Box 117, Welling, Kent DA16 3DW, enclosing their first contribution of £20. Contributions can if desired also be made by bankers order, details of which will be provided on receipt of initial payments.

RACE

RACE (by Prof. J.R. Baker). The author, a professional zoologist for 50 years, provides an objective and scholarly account of what race means and how the concept has affected human thinking. A specialist book of great importance. £10.30 plus £2.40 p&p.

WALL STREET AND THE BOLSHEVIK REVOLUTION

ANTHONY C. SUTTON

WALL STREET AND THE BOLSHEVIK REVOLUTION (by Anthony C. Sutton). The links between Wall Street finance and the Russian Revolution are proved beyond all question by an established scholar. £6.80 plus 84p p&p.

THE FRENCH REVOLUTION

NESTA H. WEBSTER

THE FRENCH REVOLUTION (by Nesta Webster). A much needed reprint of the counter-revolutionary classic that exposed the plotting behind the first great revolutionary bloodbath of modern history. £6.00 plus £2.05 p&p.

NEW REDUCED BOOK OFFER

THE ELEVENTH HOUR (by John Tyndall). We are now offering the hardback edition of this book at a price reduced from £15.00 to £12.00. This is because the paperback edition of the book is nearly sold out but there are a number of copies of the hardback in stock which we wish to clear before printing a new edition, which incidentally will be selling at a price higher than the original £15.00.

The Eleventh Hour has become the modern 'classic' for students of British Nationalism. It was written mostly while the British National Party leader was in prison, having been convicted under Britain's infamous race laws for saying things critical of the ethnic minorities. The book provides a comprehensive exposition of the entire political doctrine of the British National Party. New price £12.00 plus £3.15 p&p.

Stop unemployment... BAN IMPORTS!

ON RIGHT: British miners become latest victims of the Government's 'international free market' policy

This year, as in previous years, the Government is allowing billions of pounds worth of cheaply priced foreign goods to flood the British market and exacerbate unemployment — in part because British industries cannot pay their workers the low wages that are paid by many of their foreign competitors.

And even worse is to come. As from 1992, with the advent of the European Single Market, the few remaining import barriers we had have come down. This policy will put even more British workers on the dole.

There is only one way to prevent these things happening and to defend the jobs of British workers: We must place a progressive ban on imports of foreign-made manufactured goods, coal and all other items that can be produced in Britain, and we must build up British industries to fill the gap. This is the way to full employment, to the recovery of British industry and to national prosperity.

Can such a policy work? It has worked — in Japan, the most successful industrial nation in the modern world. We can make it work for ourselves too!

Sir: I am sure that many readers are aware that in the recent franchise changes the Independent Television teletext service was affected and that Teletext replaced Oracle. The latter frequently gave advice to homosexuals through its problem pages but the new service goes much further.

Its 'After Hours' section includes a problem page specifically for advice to queers, but the greatest outrage is its dating service which presents advertisements from homosexuals alongside those of queers, lesbians and other types of perverts.

The degree of explicitness in these pages is frankly appalling. That they are available only late in the evening is no defence. Teenagers will view such pages and their very existence (as well as their proximity to material for normal people) will leave them with the impression that homosexuality is somehow acceptable and natural, since yet another part of the media is bending over backwards (or forwards as the case may be) for 'queer rights'.

Sir: I would like to draw attention to the present situation in Blackpool. Most weekends, we are invaded by hundreds of Asians, mostly heading for the Pleasure Beach. It is worse when their so-called 'religious' fasts etc, come to an end. Then we are swamped by up to five thousand of them!

They come from all over the north of England, causing trouble, speeding through the streets, jostling holiday-makers (including women and children), many of whom will never come back (who can blame them?).

I will quote a local policeman: "We cannot intervene, in case we get complaints of racial discrimination. The Chief Constable is running scared, we have no control." I leave you to draw your own conclusions.

As always, the local press seldom even mention these 'events'. The local radio even broadcast a warning to locals to stay indoors! Yes, that's right, we are advised to hand over a major British town to them! No wonder Blackpool's holiday trade is declining.

BBC descends to the sewers

JOHN TYNDALL COMMENTS ON THE PUBLIC EYE PROGRAMME OF JANUARY 22

WHEN the British National Party was approached by the BBC with a view to its participating in the making of a film for the Public Eye programme, it needed no special prescience on our part to know that this was intended to be the usual 'hatchet job'. We gave our co-operation, however, as the programme almost certainly would have been made without us anyway, and it was foolish therefore to refuse ourselves the opportunity to have our own say. This was the correct decision, as it always is in these circumstances. There are some people who imagine that a political movement can survive and grow while boycotting the mass media, but they are not folk who live in the real world.

This having been said, it is wise to approach media operatives, especially BBC ones, on the understanding that the great majority of them should be given the kind of trust customarily accorded to rattlesnakes, as their mission in life where nationalists are concerned is to crucify us in the eyes of their public, if necessary by resort to the most vicious lies and misrepresentation. We were under no illusions that the Public Eye programme, scheduled for January 22nd, would be an exception to this rule, and when the lady presenter exuded sugar and spice at one of the preliminary meetings we were not deceived.

When the filming team arrived at my home for the arranged interview they were still in a state of some shock from their experience the previous evening, when they had recorded extracts from a party meeting in East London. With an air of great wounded indignation, they described how hostile the reception to them had been and how their cameraman, poor darling, had actually been hit by a flying bottle as they left the premises at the end. Whilst I was ready to believe that some serious breach of discipline by party supporters might have occurred, I postponed coming to any final conclusion about the matter until I had made some further enquiries. These enquiries established that the filming team had reneged on a clear agreement they had made with the meeting organisers beforehand that there would be no close-up shots taken of individual members of the audience, this agreement being entirely necessary in view of the victimisation some of our members have suffered in their jobs as a result of their connections with us — a victimisation in which, of course, the Public Eye team were entirely uninterested; the only suffering that excited any concern in their intrusive nostrils was that of Blacks or Asians who complained of maltreatment by the BNP! Then of course the latter's horror stories were accepted without question as being the gospel truth — without BNP spokesmen being given the opportunity to refute them.

WELCOME OUTSTAYED

When TV cameras were thrust into the noses of audience members who had desired to maintain privacy and anonymity, there was, very understandably, considerable annoyance, and it was made clear to the TV team that they had overstayed their welcome. Apparently, just after they had left the meeting and were proceeding up the street to their vehicle one person from the audience, his patience stretched beyond breaking point, heaved an empty beer-bottle in the direction of the cameraman. I do not approve of this action, but having heard full reports of what preceded it from several colleagues who were present I am inclined to take a much more lenient attitude towards the thrower that I would do in normal circumstances.

When the team arrived at my home they were treated with all possible courtesy, with my wife making coffee for everyone. Before the interview took place, they asked to be permitted to take a shot of me in a typical working situation. I let them film me going through some morning mail with (as is a frequent habit of mine) a bit of soft background music. I selected a Schubert quintet which is one of my great favourites — being very mindful of the probability that in another part of the programme they would seek to link the BNP with racist 'rock' — something with which we are not connected but which some of our younger members listen to from time to time, as of course is their personal right. This simple operation of filming me looking at correspondence started to become bewilderingly complicated as the cameraman (whom I suspected to be 'gay') started prancing around me taking shots from many angles and even through a mirror! In the edited version that was broadcast the focus was at one moment on the transistor playing the music, the next on me as seen through the mirror and finally on my reading glasses, a letter and a paper-clip. Just what goes through the minds of these people as they select these shots is beyond my comprehension, but that is just an amused observation; it is not a complaint.

From the moment the interview began, it was quite clear that the interviewer, one Miss Sarah Spiller, was not in the slightest bit interested in giving me or the BNP a fair hearing. Nowhere was there any mention of party policies; all the lady was concerned about was branding us all, including myself, as criminals so obviously awful that the public should not even consider thinking about what political objectives we actually stood for.

In 20-odd years of giving interviews to journalists and broadcasting people I have come to expect hostility and to anticipate that the focus of questioning will be away from the real political issues and onto personal allegations of this kind. I must, however, award Miss Spiller one of the very top prizes for the sheer poison of her approach. She clearly will have commended herself to her superiors, who of course are ready to reward zeal and talent in the art of dragging everything patriotic and pro-British through the malodorous slime.

I presumed the proceedings to have ended when this self-appointed grand inquisitress gave me a concluding 'thank you'. Upon this, I felt the moment had arrived for me to tell the filming team what I thought of them in no uncertain terms. This is not a regular practice of mine but the sense of nausea generated during the interview induced me to break my normal rule on this occasion. As those who saw the programme will know, the cameras and sound had not in fact been switched off, and part of my dressing down given to the team was shown in the final broadcast. This was in violation of all the normal ethics of interviewing, and almost certainly would not occur with any other type of interviewee. However, at the end of the day I must blame myself for this occurrence. Ample experience should have taught me that with such people any descent to the sewers is possible. I disobeyed the voice of experience and expected from the film team standards of decency and fair play that I should not have expected. Let my slip-up be a warning to others, as well as to myself, as to what to anticipate in the future!

PROGRAMME A TRAVESTY

The final broadcast version of the programme was a travesty from beginning to end. It was clear what the objectives of the producers were. A wholly false and unfounded chain of association linked the BNP to football hooligans, murders of ethnic minority members and spectacles of the devotees of 'rock' music (seemingly nearly all male) gyrating around a dance-floor in what appeared to be simulated riot. To the intelligent and discerning viewer, the links rested on a series of non-sequiturs so ludicrous as to warrant instant dismissal. Because a few young supporters of the BNP attend 'rock' concerts (many of them for social purposes rather than for the music), and because at one such concert some members of a well-known football mob were present — presto! The BNP is allied with football hooliganism, a pursuit it regards with complete loathing.

Then what of the so-called 'racial murders' that were cited in the programme? In fact the police investigating both these murders have so far been unable to find a shred of evidence linking them with any racial motive, least of all a political one. But never mind, BBC character assassins are not troubled by such trifles as facts. Because certain left-wing political groups decided to exploit the killings of two youths in London, one a West Indian and the other an Asian, for their own political ends by designating them as 'racist', this, in BBC eyes, lent automatic and unquestioned authenticity to the claim that somehow the BNP had something to do with them. Ergo the BNP commits racist murders — it's that simple!

When Miss Spiller started to grill me on this subject I asked her why the Public Eye team were not interested in the frightening increase in assaults by black thugs on defenceless old white women, some of them ending in murder, some in rape, thousands more merely in robbery and beatings-up. She abruptly changed the subject, and this riposte was, predictably, edited out of the broadcast version of the interview. Obviously such matters are of no concern to BBC people — after all, only Whites ever commit racial attacks!

Also of no interest whatsoever to the programme team was the series of acts of violence that have been committed against BNP members over the years by mobsters of the far left. Only nationalists, you see, ever beat up political opponents! Young Asians were filmed practising unarmed combat in anticipation of BNP thuggery, with Miss Spiller listening to one of their spokesmen with evident sympathy. Just supposing that those in training had been our people — of course it would have been for the purpose of committing more of those mythical 'racial attacks' — or perhaps of overthrowing the Government!

At one stage in the programme it was stated that the British National Party does not normally advertise its meetings — as if there was something sinisterly clandestine about them. The truth is of course that the BNP is banned from hiring halls by practically all local councils, and is forced to employ methods of deception to be able to hold meetings at all. This, needless to say, would not interest the makers of such programmes as Public Eye, one of whose purposes is to depict our party as a danger to 'democracy' rather than one that is denied its proper democratic rights — as is in fact the case.

COUNTER-PRODUCTIVE

All in all, I would say that the Public Eye programme on January 22nd was one of the nastiest pieces of anti-nationalist smear propaganda that I have witnessed in my entire life as a political campaigner. Notwithstanding this, I do not believe it had anything like the effect intended. One of the great mistakes our media operatives make — particularly in times like these — is to overestimate how much the British people love them and hang on their every word. Of course there are still plenty of morons sat in front of goggleboxes up and down the land who respond like Pavlovian dogs to every message Big Brother broadcasts to them. But an increasing number of our compatriots are now coming to see these dirt-peddlers for exactly what they are. The reports that I am getting from around the country indicate that a great many did not swallow the garbage served up by Public Eye but are asking themselves: why is the BBC so frightened of us that it must use this kind of manifest 'overkill' to do us down? Already I have been stopped in the street by people I have never seen before and shaken by the hand as a result of what they saw on the night. This indicates that Britain is waking up, and that — to some people — is a terrifying prospect!

The Public Eye programme of January 22nd will be the subject of an official complaint that is being prepared by the British National Party for presentation to the Broadcasting Complaints Commission. Whatever the findings of the Commission concerning this complaint, the letter of complaint itself will in due course be reproduced as a BNP pamphlet exposing the bias and fabrication employed by television against nationalists and patriots in this country.

More new units formed in January

The last month has seen the formation of further new local active units of the British National Party. At a meeting of what was the Cannock (West Midlands) Branch of the National Front a resolution was passed whereby the branch would transfer its allegiance to the BNP. This unit has amalgamated with the already existing BNP Walsall group to form the Walsall & Cannock BNP.

The BNP also now at long last has an established Coventry unit. More details of this can be found in a report on page 8.

In addition, a group has been formed in Skipton (Yorkshire).

On the adverse side, the Tayside unit in Scotland has disbanded. We hope this will be only temporary.

Council elections

This May the British National Party will be contesting many local government elections in England and Wales — in fact a record number. Find out if your local unit is fighting and, if so, give the campaign all the support you can!

ANAL score 'own-goal' over Tyndall book

The self-styled 'Anti-Nazi League', better known to us as ANAL, has scored another spectacular 'own-goal' by getting so worked up about the BNP that its antics have won the party much useful publicity.

It all started when someone discovered a copy of John Tyndall's book The Eleventh Hour on the shelves of the public library in Nelson, Lancashire. To permit such a work to be read by library patrons is definitely not 'politically correct', so the local ANAL made a loud protest to the chief librarian to get the book removed. This did not at first succeed, and the 'anti-nazis' thereupon mounted a highly publicised local campaign to whip up pressure on the library to get it to capitulate to their demand. All this made headlines in the local paper, the Leader Times. For several weeks there were reports and letters about the book being in the library (both for and against), and as a result a great number of local people in the Mid-Lancs. area got to know about the book who previously had never heard of it!

Finally, the editor of the Leader Times got so fed up with the agitation of the ANAL mob that he felt obliged to write an editorial on the subject in which he said:-

"...Such is the publicity being given to The Eleventh Hour by those locally who are seeking to ban it that there is probably now a waiting list for the book, and perhaps even pressure for the purchase of extra copies to satisfy public demand.

"If Mr. Tyndall's views are extremist and objectionable, he holds no monopoly of such sentiments. There are works written by writers of the far left to which those of a right-wing political persuasion could equally take exception. To talk of removing from the shelves that literature with which certain groups disagree is moving into very dangerous waters indeed."

And so say all of us. Meanwhile, thanks, ANAL, for such an excellent publicity boost for the BNP leader's writings. A few more campaigns like this and we may even send you a bit of commission on extra copies sold!

SUBJECT OF ALL THE FUSS
The Eleventh Hour (above) is the political autobiography of British National Party leader John Tyndall, and contains the most detailed exposition of BNP doctrine yet published

PONDERABLE QUOTE

"No longer paralysed by fear of totalitarianism, we can, indeed should, start recalling that history provides innumerable examples of acceptable non-democratic systems of government — benevolent despotisms, wise oligarchies, paternalistic monarchies. As for English liberties, quite as many of them were won before democracy took over as after. To be against democracy in no wise means being in favour of tyranny."

PEREGRINE WORSTHORNE

BNP and the police

One or two readers have queried the wording of a part of our front-page article last month where reference is made to the British National Party needing "to avoid being pushed around by the footsoldiers of the establishment — the reds and the police." It has been asked: does this indicate that the BNP is adopting an 'anti-police' attitude?

We wish it to be made clear that the reference was intended to refer only to certain specific officers among Britain's police forces who have abused their powers in denying BNP activists their normal democratic rights. It is regretted if the wording gave the impression that this meant the police as a whole. To the great majority of the nation's police the BNP gives its fullest respect and support. It is unfortunate that a minority of officers, mainly in the senior ranks, give the police a bad name by acting sometimes as the political tools of the establishment in singling out nationalists for victimisation instead of enforcing the law properly and impartially.

BNP opposes Coventry pervert's clinic

The British National Party held an exciting Day of Action in Coventry on Saturday, 9th January, in support of the residents of Exhall who are opposed to a clinic for sex abusers being opened in their locality.

Midlands BNP has for a long time wanted to establish a group in Coventry. The Day of Action finally achieved this.

ANAL SUPPORTERS ROUTED

The day started with a visit to the city centre where a motley crew of ANAL supporters had set up a literature table. When they saw the BNP group bearing down on them, they picked up their table and ran!

At 1.30pm the activists in the city centre were transported to Exhall where teams from other areas had assembled. The BNP then formed up with banners and union flags on the spot where local residents have long been holding demonstrations in opposition to the perverts' clinic.

Following a short demonstration outside Alderman McDonnell House, which met with massive support from people driving past, the 60 strong BNP group walked into the housing area of Exhall with flags flying and loud speakers blasting out support for local people and opposition to the clinic, and distributed leaflets door to door. After months of consultation during which a petition of 10,000 names in opposition to the sex offenders clinic was put before the council, local people's wishes were ignored and the council gave the green light for the clinic.

We share the anger of local people and feel strongly that if there is a need for a child sex abuse clinic it should be for the victims of abuse — not the abusers. The abusers should be removed from civilised society and locked away for a very long time. Our position made us very welcome in Exhall.

COVENTRY BNP GROUP

The day came to an end with a highly successful meeting to officially recognise Coventry BNP group. The meeting was addressed by Midland organiser John Peacock, who introduced the organiser for Coventry BNP and talked about the success of the day's events. He went on to call for support for the party's 1993 recruitment drive — the 'Join Us!' campaign.

Excellent day of action in Mansfield

THE BNP maintains a strong and active presence in the East Midlands, and this is due in no small part to the dedication and hard work of the Mansfield and Chesterfield units.

The two units recently held a very successful joint day of action in Mansfield. The activity began with a paper sale, which was welcomed by the public — several people joined the BNP on the spot, saying that they admired the Party's tough stance on law and order as well as its anti-immigration policy. The highlight of the day was when a planned demonstration by ANAL was quickly 'terminated' by the BNP!

ANAL had boasted that it would hold a 'mass rally' in Mansfield to disrupt the BNP's planned activity. In the event, a grand total of 12 queers, drug-addicts and other communist types led by a local Jewish solicitor, shuffled into view outside the local Labour club. The unwashed communists looked distinctly uneasy when the BNP turned up to confront them. After being photographed and then heckled by the BNP, the timid red 'revolutionaries' resorted to their usual tactic — they ran to the police!

As it happens, the smelly 'class warriors' were probably wise to hide behind the Old Bill, as several of them still have rather 'painful' memories of previous encounters with the local BNP!

By the time the police arrived, however, the BNP had already moved on to the next part of the activity, which involved another paper sale and the distribution of over 1,000 leaflets in the nearby Sutton estate. Again, the activity was well received by the public.

Thankfully, it appears that the activities of 'anti-racists' in Mansfield have now ceased completely following the relentlessly tough response by the BNP and hostility from ordinary local people. The BNP recently intercepted a Mansfield ANAL newsletter which admitted "It looks like the BNP are firmly established in Mansfield."

They couldn't be more right!

MANSFIELD BNP unit goes into action

What we stand for

- The establishment of a government of national unity that will put an end to nationally divisive party warfare; the return of leadership and statesmanship to British affairs.
- An end to immigration and a start to repatriation.
- British withdrawal from the Common Market
- The disbanding of the multi-racial Commonwealth and its replacement by a new Commonwealth of self-governing white states.
- British ownership and control of British industry and resources.
- Protection of British industry by the selective exclusion of foreign manufactured goods from the British market.
- An end to the financial swindle that causes inflation and slump, and its replacement by a sane and fair financial system that will give the people the purchasing power to buy the goods they produce.
- The subordination of the power of the City to the power of government, and the harnessing of the City to the needs of British industry.
- The regeneration of British farming, with the object of achieving the maximum possible self-sufficiency in food production.
- Rejection of both the poll tax and its substitute, the new 'property tax', and a return to the old rates system, though with fairer rebates allowing for differences in income and in the numbers occupying properties.
- A healthy environment for a healthy people — the protection of our countryside and an end to the architectural disfigurement of our towns and cities.
- Tougher treatment of criminals, including the return of the death penalty.
- A return to traditional methods of education, with stronger discipline in the classroom and the sacking of 'trendy' teachers.
- An alternative defence strategy: withdrawal from NATO, closure of all foreign military and air bases in Britain, the strengthening of Britain's defences and a position of armed neutrality.
- An end to overseas aid and the allocation of the money saved to the financing of repatriation and greater help for the needy at home.
- The crushing of the IRA, the termination of the Anglo-Irish Agreement and firm support for the loyalist majority in Northern Ireland.
- Repeal of the laws permitting homosexuality and abortion (except where the latter is the result of rape or necessary on medical grounds), the wiping out of AIDS and a return to healthy moral values aimed at strengthening the family and community.
